

What is Claimed is:

1. A method of manipulating wave data, comprising:

receiving wave data reflected from a biological entity; and, correlating the reflected wave data to a substance in the biological entity, wherein the correlating step comprises the steps of:

calculating an amplitude for the reflected wave data; calculating a phase angle for the reflected wave data; and, identifying a glucose level in the biological entity by using the amplitude and the phase angle.